Review: Grace Gravity – Teri Hitt

Produced by Brian David Hardin

Reviewed by Ronan Bennett

The bright acoustic guitar strums enunciate the mood setting rhythm, while the sax takes us back to a simpler era. These bright voices are flower power with an 80's feel. The blues guitar licks on Zero Hour set the tone for this late-night reflective furrow with hints of Denny Dias and Derek Trucks. The music insinuates to be mindful of thoughts and actions in the tenuous ecologically changing time. This CD would be great for an outdoor social event to add eclectic flare to the background during the party.
